Men of Tomorrow Scholarship Committee offers scholarships to Omaha-area students

Omaha, Nebraska - African-American male high school students interested in a college or technical school scholarship are invited to apply for the 2007 Men of Tomorrow High School Scholarship Award.

In May 2007, the Men of Tomorrow Scholarship Committee will award several scholarships to African-American male students who will be college freshmen or first year technical school students during the 2007-2008 academic year. The committee will award scholarships designed to provide educational opportunities for students with outstanding academic and extra-curricular activities records.

Interested students must complete a nomination package, available through the Men of Tomorrow Scholarship Committee website (www.menoftomorrow.net). The deadline for receipt for all 2007 nominations is April 30, 2007. The scholarship winners will be notified by May 15, 2007.

Additional information on the 2007 scholarship program is available by phoning the Men of Tomorrow Scholarship Committee at (402) 517-5593 or on the committee's website at www.menoftomorrow.net.

About Men of Tomorrow: Men of Tomorrow was established in 2005 by concerned community members who desired to encourage and empower young African-American males through positive interaction with men in the community. Men of Tomorrow is a program focused on increasing knowledge, establishing positive attitudes and developing life skills that will assist our young men in their development. Men of Tomorrow awarded its first academic scholarships to Omaha youth in 2006.
